GREAT DAMAGE RESULTS FROM HEAVY STORMS

General Rain, Wind and Lightning Sweeps Country.

WHEELING HIT WORST

Telegraph and Telephone Service Impaired By Vicious Elements

Washington, Sept. 2.—The heaviest rainfall in fifty years drenched the national capital this morning, causing widespread damage and delaying transportation. The storm began at 2 o'clock this morning and by 9 o'clock six inches of water had fallen, according to weather bureau officials. Street cars were impeded, cellars were flooded and sewers over flowed.

Detroit, Mich., Sept. 2.—A severe rain and hail storm which struck Detroit early today flooded basements of downtown stores and did thousands of dollars' damage. Hail stones as large as small marbles fell during the storm.

The city was inundated with 1.16 inches of rainfall within a period of four hours. It flooded cellars, drains and sewers, turned low spots in the city streets to lakes, and partially crippled electric light, trolley and telephone service. The storm was reported north and east of Detroit also.

It assumed the proportions of a cyclone at Ecorse, tearing down houses, barns and flats and putting several families at the mercy of the storm. It demolished a two family flat at Ellis and Victor streets and telephone poles and trees in Detroit were struck by lightning. A box car in the Michigan Central yards was set on fire and destroyed.

Pittsburgh, Pa., Sept. 2.—Telegraph and telephone companies here were badly crippled today. A severe storm in the middlewest last night was blamed. Service to Chicago during the forenoon was at a standstill. The Postal Telegraph company had one wire to Chicago over a circuitous route by way of Cincinnati and Jacksonville, Fla. Their only other wire was a very uncertain affair to Cleveland. Otherwise the Postal was completely at a standstill during most of the forenoon. The Western Union was similarly affected.

Findlay, O., Sept. 2.—Damage estimated at $125,000 was done by a severe wind and electrical storm which passed over this city and environs late last night. Houses were unroofed, trees blown down and windows smashed. The McKeek school ignited by lightning, was damaged to the extent of $2,000. Two oil tanks and fired, burned down. They contained only a small quantity of oil.

Wheeling, W. Va., Sept. 2.—Damage estimated at more than a million dollars was caused by a severe electric storm in the Wheeling district last night. More than a dozen fires were started by lightning bolts, heaviest damage being suffered at the Beach Bottom Power plant, where half a million loss was suffered from lightning and fire. Towns within a 20 mile radius of Wheeling were plunged into darkness, street car service interrupted and wire communication seriously hampered.

FORGOTTEN CLAUSE IN CONSTITUTION BROUGHT TO LIGHT

Gives State Power to Control and Fix Prices In Coal Industry.

Columbus, Sept. 2.—"Laws may be passed to provide for the regulation of methods of mining, weighing, measuring and marketing coal, oil, gas and all other minerals."

This clause in an amendment to the constitution of Ohio, adopted in 1912 by the voters of the state as part of the "progressive" constitutional changes adopted by the voters of the state at the time, will be relied upon by those seeking legislative means to curb profiteering in coal prices and establish such control of the coal industry as will make any legislation effective it was authoritatively learned here today.

Tucked away as part of the conservation amendment relating to the establishment of forests and other conservation measures, it had been well nigh forgotten by state officials. Officials believe that it scope had been entirely overlooked by operators who rejected the proposed state prices Thursday.

Under the broad grant of power here given, prominent lawyers told newspapermen today, almost anything that the state thought necessary in the way of price fixing or marketing might be done. No state in the union, it was emphatically stated, possesses broader powers to control this basic industry than are granted under the words above quoted. It is anticipated that the forthcoming opinion of Attorney General Price to be given to Gov. Davis early next week will bear out this forecast.

FRENCH APPROVE ACT OF REPARATIONS BODY TO TAKE BONDS

Paris, Sept. 1.—The French cabinet today approved the decision of the inter allied reparations commission to accept German bonds instead of cash for indemnity payments. The commission accepted the Belgian plan for a respite of German cash payments, despite the protestations of the Germans that the bonds may not prove good.

While the cabinet accepted the reparations commission's decision, an announcement was made that it would reserve freedom of action until it could examine the German Belgian agreement.

France, it was pointed out, will not allow the Belgian bond loan to develop in to an actual moratorium.

DENIES INCREASE IN WAGE ALLOWED

Chicago, Sept. 2.—Reports that the U. S. railroad labor board had granted the maintenance of way employees a three cent increase per hour in wages were flatly denied today by Attorney General Daugherty.

The track men's wage hearing cannot possibly come up before the board for discussion until September 10 or 11, Hooper said. Testimony on the wounding six seriously, according to Attorney General Daugherty.

TWO KILLED IN IRELAND
London, Sept. 2.—Irregulars attacked a parade of Irish free state supporters in Cork today, killing two and 12, Hooper said. Testimony on the wounding six seriously, according to Attorney General Daugherty.

President Harding

camped at Camp Meade. "If I had my way," he told them, "instead of 28,000 men in training camps there would be 100,000 annually studying and preparing for the military service." General Pershing and other notables addressed the embryo officers.

SESSION CONTINUES

National Government Steps In—Clark Still Held In Jail

Marion, Ills., Sept. 2.—The long arm of the law had reached into the mine patches of "bloody Williamson" County today and was ready to reach those responsible for the Herrin massacre.

Following the "leak" from the grand jury room on the indictment of Otis Clark, now arrested and charged with the murder, the United States Department of justice has thrown enough secret operatives into the coal region to maintain a front and back door surveillance of those suspected of the killings.

The grand jury may return scores of indictments as the result of the slaying of twenty-two men near Herrin in the rioting of last June, and there will be officers sufficient to reach to it that those indicted do not slip through the net.

"It is foolish for any one to talk about running away," said Attorney General Edward E. Brundage. "Let them run. There is a government man at the front and back door of every suspected man and he cannot make a move that is not reported.

"There is no place on earth they can move to without our knowledge.

"This investigation is going on slowly but surely. Those who are guilty of the massacre cannot hide or dodge the consequence. They are as good as under arrest once the indictment is returned."

The announcement that the national government had taken an active hand in the proceedings came as a shock to the community. It had been expected that special officers would be deputized to make a swift sortie into the mine patches in case whole sale indictment were returned.

Otis Clark, president of a mine local who is charged with the murder of C. K. McDowell, one of the men who was shot down in the "death march" near Herrin, was still in jail. The prosecution announced that every effort would be made to resist attempts by the defense attorneys to secure Clark's release on bail.

HUSBAND OF PEGGY MARSH SHOOTS SELF ON HONEYMOON

Plattsburgh, N. Y., Sept. 2.—Albert L. Johnson, husband of Peggy Marsh, actress and dancer, was in a serious condition early today, as the result of an accidentally self inflicted pistol wound Thursday night. Physicians said his chances of recovery were slight.

The Johnsons were completing their honeymoon at Chateaugay Lake camp of Jack Clifford, former husband of Evelyn Nesbit Thaw.

Following a day's pistol practice in the woods Johnson is said to have been cleaning his weapon when the gun exploded. The bullet penetrated his abdomen. A forty mile trip by row boat and automobile was required to get Johnson to a hospital. An emergency operation was performed at Champlain Valley hospital.

Johnson is the son of the late Albert L. Johnson, once president of the British Rapid Transit company and a nephew of the late Tom Johnson, famed as mayor of Cleveland.

His actress wife was near a state of collapse today.

CLEVELAND MAN SHOT

Federal Attorney Ordered To Be on Lookout for Violations

Memphis, Tenn., Sept. 2.—Striking railway shopmen and strikebreakers employed in shops here engaged in a pitched battle early this morning. One man is known to have been killed outright and many are reported to have been wounded.

The fighting continued for some time and details of the battle were lacking at an early hour.

Cleveland, Sept. 2.—Matthew Strazisar, 21, striking shopman, was shot and killed and Peter Schweisthal, 45, non union cabinet maker employed at the New York Central shops, is dying with a bullet through his windpipe, as the result of a clash early today between three alleged strikers and Schweisthal in front of the latter's home here.

According to Schweisthal's wife, who witnessed the shooting, the three men approached with drawn revolvers and began firing. Schweisthal, though shot through the neck and breast, returned the fire, killing Strazisar.

Schweisthal had previously been threatened, according to his wife, and bricks had been hurled through his window. On one occasion he dispersed two men engaged in painting the word "scab" on his house by shooting at them.

Washington, Sept. 2.—Orders went forward from Washington today to all the federal district attorneys in the country to maintain a sharp lookout for violations of the sweeping injunction secured by Attorney General Daugherty against the striking employees.

Pittsburgh, Sept. 2.—Five thousand or more striking railroad shopmen will test out the effectiveness of the restraining order issued by the federal court in Chicago Friday, when they paraded through the streets of this city Monday. The strikers will constitute the usual labor day parade here. Police authorities today sanctioned the march by issuing a city permit. U. S. district attorney Walter Lyon said he would take no action, until directly authorized to do so by Attorney General Daugherty.

France, it was pointed out, will not allow the Belgian bond loan to develop in to an actual moratorium.

ROLLING STOCK IN BAD ORDER CUMMINS SAYS

Equipment Deteriorated 20 Per Cent Senator Says In Warning.

SEEKS PASSAGE

Bill Intended to Regulate Coal Prices and Curb Profiteering

Washington, Sept. 2.—An emphatic warning that railroad rolling stock is already in such "bad order" that even if the shopmen's strike were ended now it probably would be six months before transportation could be resumed at its "highest peak" was voiced today by Senator Cummings, chairman of the interstate commerce committee of the senate.

Senator Cummings urged that the fact that at least 20 per cent of railroad equipment essential to adequate transportation has deteriorated in spite of the court's injunction issued by the administration be immediately enacted into law.

It is unfortunate," the statement declared, "in a suit for the announced purpose of preventing lawlessness and violence in connection with the strike, the court has prepared and the court on hasty consideration has entered an order, which unless carefully interpreted might read as a flagrant violation of the constitutional rights of American citizens as repeatedly affirmed by the supreme court of the United States.

The executive council of the shopcrafts holds particularly that their greatest weapon—picketing—cannot be assumed to come within the provision of the injunction issued by Judge Wilkerson. Peaceful picketing, it was pointed out, has time and again been held as lawful by the supreme court of the United States.

"We assume the right to continue a lawful strike in a lawful manner until a satisfactory settlement is made," is the shopmen's attitude.

"And until advised that the constitution and the supreme court decisions are no longer to be relied upon as the law of the land," the railway shopcrafts declare they will perform their "legitimate duties to their members."

Although the proposed legislation continued to encounter stiff opposition from certain senators, Cummings expressed the belief that the differences between the bill as passed by the house and as reported from his committee would soon be "composed" and its passage by the senate is imminent.

Senator Reed, Democrat, of Missouri, in attacking the bill, declared that the "trouble with the situation was not that the interstate commerce commission was without ample power to meet the coal crisis, but that it was misusing the power it already possessed."

Republican leaders in charge of the bill conceded the contention of Senator Walsh, Democrat, of Montana, that it was intended not "so much to authorize the interstate commerce commission to issue additional priority orders as to cloak it with authority to employ such orders in such a way as would regulate coal prices and prevent profiteering by both coal operators and dealers."

It was denied, however, by them that it was a "price fixing bill," as charged by some of its opponents.

Washington, Sept. 2.—Matthew Strazisar, 21, striking shopman, was shot and killed and Peter Schweishthal, 45, non union cabinet maker employee at the New York Central shops, is dying with a bullet through his windpipe, as the result of a clash early this morning.

Washington, Sept. 2.—Inflamed and aroused by the most drastic restraint order ever issued by a court in an industrial dispute, organized labor today projected the menacing shadow of a general strike across the country in answer to what Samuel Gompers bitterly and contemptuously described as "government by injunction."

From being merely a strike of some 400,000 railway shopmen, endangering the transportation system of the country, the issue has now been magnified to the point where it threatens to affect all organized labor and engulf all business and industry, labor leaders privately declared today.

DAIRY ORGANIZATION WORK, STARTED IN JUNE 1921 RAPIDLY GROWING IN GREENE COUNTY—FRANK WARDLOW ACTIVE

June 1921 marked the date when ville, Xenia, Spring Valley, Fairfield and Alpha. "The stations have met with marked success," said County Agent Prince Saturday, his opinion coinciding with that of farmers who marked their cream through the stations.

"Greene County farmers are getting from three to six cents a pound more for their butter fat than the farmers in unorganized territory where no farmers' cream stations have been established." Mr. Prince said.

The cream stations in Greene County are paying within two cents a pound of the price of 92 cents buttermilk in Chicago, and are rebating the profits of the stations at the end of each month, amounting from two to Large acreage with the expectation of reaping a substantial profit are doomed to greater or less disappointment, it would seem from a perusal of the government's potato estimate which puts the acreage at 4,288,000 acres, or five per cent above the average for the five years, 1916-1920. The August crop condition is 84.2 per cent. A bumper crop, depressing potato prices to the lowest point in the history of the market, has visited upon the farmer so lavishly.

Drought is cutting down the corn crop, and a record yield is out of the question. Corn growers might gain more by selling a smaller crop at higher prices, but the ultimate effect upon the country at large and upon the farming community of a large crop is more beneficial than that of a small crop.

Activity in the cotton spinning industry slackened appreciably in July as compared with June. The government report was expected to show a considerable drop in condition, due to damage by weevil, rain, and weather. Southern interests are hopeful of a crop not in excess of 11,000,000 bales. The boll weevil destroyed 6,277,000 million bales of cotton last year, according to figures compiled by the department of Agriculture—an increase of 37 per cent over damage to the 1920 crop from the same source.

Independent interests have already begun to seek prices in view of the wage advances and advances in price of coal. Steel ingot production has declined to about 50 per cent of capacity. Receipts of coal by the iron and steel industry will increase slowly.

GRAIN SALES CO. BEING ORGANIZED BOYS AND GIRLS HAVE MORE STOCK AT FAIR THAN EVER

The "Ohio Grain Sales Company" organized by farmers of the state under the cooperative laws of Ohio will become a fact in a short time if the proposals sent to farm leaders in every county last week are approved. The proposals are made by a grain marketing committee of nine representing the Ohio Farm Bureau Federation, the State Grange, and the Farmers' Grain Dealers' Association.

In case the proposals are adopted it is expected that the Ohio Grain Sales Company will be one of the largest cooperative organizations ever set up in the state.

Briefly the plan calls for a stock company, with the ownership made up of farmers' co-operative elevators and local cooperative organizations owned and controlled by farmers.

The amount of stock controlled by any individual elevator is limited so that no single local company, or in all probability, any one section of the state could control its operations. The business will be pursued on the basis of a cash sales agency, buying grain outright from local cooperatives, and selling to the highest bidder.

A commission charge will be made, and after expenses are deducted and a reserve set up all additional profits are to be sent back to the local companies for distribution to farmers on the basis of patronage they furnish. Small capital and the ownership of no visible property at present is contemplated.

FARMERS MAY FORM CREAM STATION SELECTION OF SEED CORN TO BE SHOWN

A joint meeting of farmers of Shreveport, New Jasper, and Ross townships will be held in Jamestown Wednesday evening, September 6, for the purpose of formulating plans to organize a farmer's cream station at that point.

The principal speakers of the meeting will be A. F. Hedges, manager of the Miami Valley Co-operative Milk Producer's Association, and Frank Wardlow, of Beavercreek trustee of the Miami Valley Association.

A Farm Bureau meeting will also be held at Beavercreek Monday evening, September 4 and at Bath township, Tuesday evening, September 5.

A schedule of day meetings is also being announced by County Agent Prince.

MINOR TRANSFERS OF TERRITORY MADE AT SCHOOL BOARD MEET

Minor transfers of territory in various school districts were arranged for at a meeting of the county board of education held Friday afternoon in the office of Supt. H. C. Aultman.

W. B. Bryson was chairman of the meeting in the place of President A. L. Fisher who is in Petoskey, Mich.

Other board members at the meeting were: J. B. Rife, Clifton, J. E. Hastings, Cedarville, and S. H. Shawhan, Beavercreek.

Schools of the county will begin opening Monday for the fall term. Owing to a variance in length of the terms in different sections, schools will not all open the same day. Some will begin the term Monday Sept. 4 others, Tuesday Sept. 5, while others will be given an additional week of vacation, commencing Monday Sept. 11.

The disease, they remark, appears to be carried over in the seed, and the main control measure is careful seed selection from the standing stalk. The trouble is far easier to identify when the ear is viewed in connection with the whole stalk, than after the corn has been husked and the grain alone can be examined.

Additional reason for the early fall selection of seed corn this year lies in the fact that the scientists declare, in a late season that will probably give the first cold weather chance to freeze the germs to exposed corn. After corn is somewhat dried out, it can stand low temperatures, but when it is slow in maturing, as is the case this fall, early freezes catch it wet and ruin it for feed.

The college workers, therefore, are urging early seed selection from fields of ripening corn both as a means of avoiding root rot in next year's crop ad in order that farmers may get their seed selected and dried out before cold weather can get it.

DAIRY ORGANIZATION WORK, STARTED IN JUNE 1921 RAPIDLY GROWING IN GREENE COUNTY—FRANK WARDLOW ACTIVE

June 1921 marked the date when ville, Xenia, Spring Valley, Fairfield and Alpha. "The stations have met with marked success," said County Agent Prince Saturday, his opinion coinciding with that of farmers who marked their cream through the stations.

The organization started at a meeting held during that month in Dayton at which the need for such an organization in this locality was pointed out, and immediately following the meeting, two representatives from each of the ten counties surrounding Dayton were appointed to act as special committeemen to investigate the marketing of dairy products.

Greene County appointed Frank Wardlow of Sugarcreek township and C. J. Mellinger of Miami township on the committee. Later on the committee reduced itself to one man from each county, Mr. Wardlow assuming the duties as representative from Greene county.

The committee meetings were held approximately twice a month all the year, the members working out plans of organization, constitution and by-laws, organized under the Brand and Griswold acts, which permitted of farmers to pool their products and sell them under a central organization.

After the plan was worked out it was adopted with the constitution and by-laws, at a general meeting held in Dayton.

The membership campaign of the organization, which became known as the Miami Valley Cooperative Milk Producers Association, was started in November of last year, in the counties immediately surrounding Dayton. Foremost in the campaign have been Greene, Montgomery and Preble counties, which were first to start the work and today the membership of the whole association totals 2,500 in the ten counties, 600 members enrolling in Greene County alone.

"The Miami Valley Cooperative Milk Producers' Association is a sales organization," County Agent Ford S. Prince, points out. "The primary aim of the organization is to sell cream and milk from its members to the creamery which makes butter or to milk distributors who distribute or retail milk to the cities. It is not an organization designed to break down existing methods of manufacturing butter or distributing milk, but it is a plan to eliminate as much of waste and duplicate efforts as possible which have existed between the farmers and the butter manufacturers and milk distributors", he went on to say.

"The farmers is now getting the cost of production for his produce figuring his feed labor at the average fair price today. The only reason that he can sell dairy products at present prices is because he does his own work for nothing." Said Mr. Prince."

After the membership campaign of the Cooperative Milk Producers Association was completed the members organized these townships where sufficient members had been signed to complete the local organization, twenty-six members being required to take this step.

The following townships have organized local cream stations since the central organization was formed: Miami, Cedarville, Xenia, Beavercreek, Spring Valley, Sugarcreek, and Bath.

The various officers of the townships, who have led the organization work in their vicinity are Miami—Charles McFarland, president; E. K. Fogg, vice-president; Earl Dunevant, secretary; Archie Peterson, treasurer; and C. J. Mellinger, advisory councilman. Cedarville—Clayton McMillan, president; J. R. Kyle, vice-president; F. Dobbins, secretary; N. P. Ebanks, treasurer, and E. E. Finney, advisory councilman. Xenia—B. U. Bell, president; Walter Nash, vice-president; Elmer Hetsel, secretary; Herman Eavey, treasurer; and Ralph Spahr, advisory councilman.

Beavercreek—Russell Schultz, president; C. K. Wolf, vice-president; Nelson Ankeny, secretary; Frank Wagner, treasurer; and Earl Koogler and Ralph Moon, advisory councilmen. Spring Valley—Joe Smith, president; Collins Turner, vice-president; E. C. Hartsock, secretary, and E. J. Kelsey, treasurer and advisory councilman. Sugarcreek—Waldo Elliott, president; Lampton Smith, vice-president; Henry Weller, secretary; Carl Peterson, treasurer, and K. J. Sunderland, advisory councilman. Bath—J. W. Barr, president; Howard Baird, vice-president; Fred Deger, secretary; George Warner, treasurer, and J. M. Snook, advisory councilmen. The list consists of seven townships organized to date, all townships of the county boasting some membership in the Miami Valley organization.

The advisory councilmen of the various townships are a part of the governing board of the district association. The officers of the township have charge of all the local business in each township and in case a cream station is formed they act as directors of that organization, and also have charge of questions concerning milk that come up throughout the township.

As soon as the officers were elected they determined whether they should start cream stations in their locality. Yellow Springs, was the first to start a local station, and since then stations have been started at Cedar-

BOYS AND GIRLS HAVE MORE STOCK AT FAIR THAN EVER

Farm boys and girls of Ohio exhibited more livestock at the present State Fair, Columbus, than at any previous fair. Counting chickens, which are exhibited in coops of three, the youngsters are showing for prizes in the junior agricultural club classes 538 farm animals which they have raised themselves in county contests, conducted on a statewide basis through the State agricultural extension service.

Pigs shown by boys' and girls' clubs numbers 189, as compared to 172 so shown last year. So far, with judging still in progress, first claim on popular attention goes to Harold Smith, Fairfield County, who has his pig halter-broke, and loads him around with docility and style.

Calf club entries show the greatest growth, with 110 entries as opposed to 65 last year. Eight sheep and 12 producing dairy cows, entered and cared for by youngsters of the southern counties, represent innovations. Sheep and dairy production clubs have not yet been organized for the first time during the past year.

Entries of stock represent more than 300 individual boys and girls most of whom have previously shown at their county fairs, and have taken first, second or third money. Some of them have shown in the open classes, against adult stockmen and have also won there.

Want of speculative activity has led the grain trade to ignore decidedly bullish crop statistics, and prices are expected to hold within narrow limits until some new developments give them an impulse upward or downward—presumably upward, for prices have declined about as far as they can well go. Damage to the corn crop has been quite heavy and the government will have to revise its earlier estimates. The movement of spring wheat is rapidly increasing.

Foreigners are buying leisurely, and feel sure of their ground. Underlying industrial conditions are favorable to future strength in the grain market, but change for the better may come slowly.

LIVESTOCK

The market is erratic, due to the railroad strike, which causes receipts to vary widely. Weakness follows strength as receipts increase after a dearth. Swine trade is in a rut with prices near last year's level. Stocker and feeder demand is healthy.

AGRICULTURE

Cotton and livestock growers are undoubtedly better off now than a year ago, due to appreciation in the value of their product and decline in other prices, but grain growers are not so fortunate. Grains are selling at the lowest levels since before the war. Prices in general are now pointed upward and will raise with bandits here today.

WOOL

The wool market continues firm in the main, with the demand somewhat irregular. Wool dealers contend that the supply of fine wools in foreign countries and on this side is in adequate, justifying a rather high price. With various mills in New England opening after a prolonged shutdown, due to the strike, consumption of wool will undoubtedly increase. Foreign markets are all buoyant.

REPUBLICAN COMMITTEES AND PARTY CANDIDATES HEAR SPEAKERS AT BANQUET

Joining in a get-together meeting prior to the formal opening of the fall campaign, the Republican Central Committee, Republican Executive Committee, candidates on the county ticket, and others who will represent their party from state and districts, feasted at the Elks' Club Friday night as guests of Judge R. L. Gowdy.

Contrary to expectations of most of those attending, plans for the fall campaign were not taken up at the meeting, which developed chiefly into an exchange of party felicitations. Speakers dwelt largely upon the achievements of the Republican party in state and nation, and expressed their belief in the victory of their party at the polls in November.

Speakers were Congressman S. D. Fess, candidate for United States Senator; Charles Brand of Urbana, nominee for Congress in the Seventh District, and C. C. Crabbe, of London, candidate for Attorney General of Ohio. There were a few other impromptu speakers.

Leroy T. Marshall, as Chairman of the Greene County Executive Committee, presided over the meeting. Chairman Marshall, in his remarks, emphasized the importance of party organization, to accomplish the election of the entire Republican ticket, next November. He introduced Mr. Crabbe, who told his hearers that he had ended a fishing trip in Michigan for the purpose of being present at Friday night's gathering. He congratulated Greene County upon having a candidate for the highest place on the ticket, that of United States Senator.

Mr. Crabbe in his twenty minute talk dwelt upon state affairs. He pointed out that records of the present state Republican administration show that economical methods have increased the surplus in the state treasury from something over $900,000 to over $9,000,000. This surplus, he said, saved the taxpayers of Ohio the cost of issuing bonds to take care of the $7,500,000 required to pay the soldiers' bonus. This was taken care of out of the treasury surplus, the speaker said.

Reorganization plans inaugurated by the state administration, Mr. Crabbe pointed out, are responsible for the saving and the greatly increased treasury surplus. He closed by declaring that if he is elected attorney general, he will make it his first business to see that the laws of the state are enforced.

Senator Brand, next speaker introduced by Chairman Marshall, opened a fifteen minute talk with an outline of the history of the Republican party, the principles, of which, he said, have always proven to be correct. He named three things for which the party has always stood: First—A strong federal government, which will teach the grammar grade and Miss Shields the primary work.

Mrs. Hannah Burton, of Grand Rapids, Mich., is the guest of Mrs. Sarah Harris, East Market street.

Rev. Hester and wife have left to Ferryview, West Va., where Mrs. Hester will teach and Rev. Hester

INTERESTING THINGS ABOUT THE SMITHSONIAN INSTITUTION.

One of the most remarkable and most interesting public institutions in the world is the Smithsonian Institution at Washington, D. C. It is located in Smithsonian Park, about midway between the Capitol and the Washington monument. Most people know, in a vague way, that there is such an institution, but comparatively few know anything about its origin and purposes.

For the possession of this unique institution, America is indebted to James Smithson, natural son of the first Duke of Northumberland, who was born in England in 1754, twenty-two years before the signing of the Declaration of Independence.

Smithson, who was a graduate of Oxford University, Master of Arts, Fellow of the Royal Society, a chemist and mineralogist, made a will in 1826 bequeathing his wealth to the United States of America, "to found, at Washington, under the name of the Smithsonian Institution, an establishment for the increase and diffusion of knowledge among men." No reason was given by Smithson, either in writing or conversation, for this somewhat unusual disposition of property to a foreign country. He had never visited the United States and, so far as known, he never wrote or received any letters from anyone in America. He died in Italy three years after making his will. It was not until 1835—six years after his death—that Secretary of State John Forsyth, of Georgia, was officially informed of the bequest.

When Congress met in December of that year, President Andrew Jackson turned over the papers in the case to Congress, accompanied by a message requesting Congressional action. The Senate referred the proposition to the judiciary committee to investigate the propriety of accepting this peculiar offer. It was not until July of the following year that a law was enacted empowering the President to prosecute the claim for the Smithson funds on behalf of the United States. Richard Rush, of Pennsylvania, was selected by the President to serve as agent for the United States in collecting the money. Two years later the sum of $508,318.46 was brought across the ocean and turned over to Levi Woodbury, Secretary of the Treasury.

In a message to Congress on December 6, 1838, President Van Buren invited attention to the obligation devolving upon the United States to fulfill the object of the Smithson bequest. For eight years thereafter the subject was under consideration in the Senate and House, finally resulting in the founding of the Institution by an act of Congress of August 10, 1846, and by law the Smithson fund was made perpetually entitled to an annual income of six per cent interest, and definite resources were thus assured for carrying out the purposes and objects of the founder of the trust.

The man who originated this bill, and introduced it in the House of Representatives, was Robert Dale Owen, a member of that body from Indiana. He ought to be known throughout the United States as the legislative father of the Smithsonian Institution.

In receiving the property and accepting the trust, Congress determined that the federal government was without authority to administer the trust directly, and therefore constituted an "establishment," whose statutory members are "the President, the Vice President, the Chief Justice, and the heads of the executive departments." The business of the Institution is conducted by a Board of Regents composed of "the Vice President, the Chief Justice of the United States, and three members of the Senate and three members of the House of Representatives, together with six other persons other than Members of Congress."

Since the original bequest by Smithson, other bequests and gifts have come to the Institution from generous benefactors, varying in amounts from a quarter of a million to the modest, but none the less acceptable sums of a thousand dollars or less, until the total invested permanent fund now aggregates more than a million dollars, and is gradually increasing from year to year.

The Smithsonian is not an educational institution in the nature of a university with a corps of professors and students, and yet its educational functions are of the highest rank, for the members of its scientific staff and its many collaborators are constantly engaged in investigations in which students of science in all its branches participate; and the museum collections and the collections of animals in the Zoological Park are a constant source of original information to specialists and to groups of pupils from public and private schools in Washington and elsewhere, and to the public generally.

ADDRESSED TO MERCHANTS.

Forty years ago a store in Chicago used a full page newspaper advertisement. Other stores literally "threw up their hands" at such extravagance, daring, and stupidity. But that store (The Fair) is now one of the biggest stores in the country and some of the others who threw their hands up, never got them down because they couldn't see how the "wind was blowing." They couldn't or wouldn't see that good advertising wouldn't ruin a business but would build business. Of course there were merchants who very soon fell in line with their own big spread ads telling their store news interestingly and fully. Most of those chaps are still "going big."

It is hard to understand why some merchants cling to the idea that advertising does not pay, particularly when our whole country is filled with evidence of its paying and paying quickly. It stands to reason that the more people who know of your sales will add to the crowds in your store. A few choice friends won't make a crowded store, and store news must be told to everybody in order for it to be worth while.

BEAUTY CHATS

HOME PHYSICAL CULTURE

A novel system in physical culture has recently been presented by Albrecht Jensen, formerly in charge of medical massage clinics at a number of hospitals in New York City. The system combines the essentials of gymnastics with scientific massage movements. There are also enough of the Indian Yoga Concentration exercises to keep the body well oxygenized through rhythmic deep breathing.

As there is no apparatus required and the technique is so simple to understand, the system should be superior to others for home uses. Another great advantage is the fact that this combination of three good systems means much less time consumed in practice, since each effort is contributing to the effect. There is also very little expenditure of energy, which should cause the stout person to welcome and use this system.

A moderate degree of pressure is advised at first in giving the massage movements. Then, if there is any fatigue felt at any time, the movements are stopped while the deep breathing continues. The originator of this system claims there is less fatigue experienced than with other methods in which the exercise alone is used. While all the movements have been planned to keep the body in health, beauty, resulting from suppleness and grace has not been overlooked.

In another Chat I will give some of the movements to reduce a full abdomen, which will also prove helpful in cases of constipation.

Mrs. C. L.—As I did not receive any stamped addressed envelope which your letter states had been enclosed, I had to delay a reply, as it had to take its turn in the column. Some of the dye must have bleached out of your hair by this time but there is nothing you could have done to improve the shade once dye was set. When you have gone to excess in any color when dyeing the hair, you can count on a month to throw off the deepest part of the shade.

A. R. M.—Hang-nails usually come from neglecting to remove the dead cuticle that adheres to the nail. As this cuticle is joined to the live skin, if it is not removed, it will often dry up and curl off the nail, while it is retained by the skin. The only cure is to remove the overgrown skin before it can become an annoying hang nail.

INTERESTING THINGS ABOUT THE SMITHSONIAN INSTITUTION.

One of the most remarkable and most interesting public institutions in the world is the Smithsonian Institution at Washington, D. C. It is located in Smithsonian Park, about midway between the Capitol and the Washington monument. Most people know, in a vague way, that there is such an institution, but comparatively few know anything about its origin and purposes.

For the possession of this unique institution, America is indebted to James Smithson, natural son of the first Duke of Northumberland, who was born in England in 1754, twenty-two years before the signing of the Declaration of Independence.

Smithson, who was a graduate of Oxford University, Master of Arts, Fellow of the Royal Society, a chemist and mineralogist, made a will in 1826 bequeathing his wealth to the United States of America, "to found, at Washington, under the name of the Smithsonian Institution, an establishment for the increase and diffusion of knowledge among men." No reason was given by Smithson, either in writing or conversation, for this somewhat unusual disposition of property to a foreign country. He had never visited the United States and, so far as known, he never wrote or received any letters from anyone in America. He died in Italy three years after making his will. It was not until 1835—six years after his death—that Secretary of State John Forsyth, of Georgia, was officially informed of the bequest.

When Congress met in December of that year, President Andrew Jackson turned over the papers in the case to Congress, accompanied by a message requesting Congressional action. The Senate referred the proposition to the judiciary committee to investigate the propriety of accepting this peculiar offer. It was not until July of the following year that a law was enacted empowering the President to prosecute the claim for the Smithson funds on behalf of the United States. Richard Rush, of Pennsylvania, was selected by the President to serve as agent for the United States in collecting the money. Two years later the sum of $508,318.46 was brought across the ocean and turned over to Levi Woodbury, Secretary of the Treasury.

In a message to Congress on December 6, 1838, President Van Buren invited attention to the obligation devolving upon the United States to fulfill the object of the Smithson bequest. For eight years thereafter the subject was under consideration in the Senate and House, finally resulting in the founding of the Institution by an act of Congress of August 10, 1846, and by law the Smithsonian fund was made perpetually entitled to an annual income of six per cent interest, and definite resources were thus assured for carrying out the purposes and objects of the founder of the trust.

The man who originated this bill, and introduced it in the House of Representatives, was Robert Dale Owen, a member of that body from Indiana. He ought to be known throughout the United States as the legislative father of the Smithsonian Institution.

In receiving the property and accepting the trust, Congress determined that the federal government was without authority to administer the trust directly, and therefore constituted an "establishment," whose statutory members are "the President, the Vice President, the Chief Justice, and the heads of the executive departments." The business of the Institution is conducted by a Board of Regents composed of "the Vice President, the Chief Justice of the United States, and three members of the Senate and three members of the House of Representatives, together with six other persons other than Members of Congress."

Since the original bequest by Smithson, other bequests and gifts have come to the Institution from generous benefactors, varying in amounts from a quarter of a million to the modest, but none the less acceptable sums of a thousand dollars or less, until the total invested permanent fund now aggregates more than a million dollars, and is gradually increasing from year to year.

The Smithsonian is not an educational institution in the nature of a university with a corps of professors and students, and yet its educational functions are of the highest rank, for the members of its scientific staff and its many collaborators are constantly engaged in investigations in which students of science in all its branches participate; and the museum collections and the collections of animals in the Zoological Park are a constant source of original information to specialists and to groups of pupils from public and private schools in Washington and elsewhere, and to the public generally.

ADDRESSED TO MERCHANTS.

Forty years ago a store in Chicago used a full page newspaper advertisement. Other stores literally "threw up their hands" at such extravagance, daring, and stupidity. But that store (The Fair) is now one of the biggest stores in the country and some of the others who threw their hands up, never got them down because they couldn't see how the "wind was blowing." They couldn't or wouldn't see that good advertising wouldn't rain a business but would build business. Of course there were merchants who very soon fell in line with their own big spread ads telling their store news interestingly and fully. Most of those chaps are still "going big."

It is hard to understand why some merchants cling to the idea that advertising does not pay, particularly when our whole country is filled with evidence of its paying and paying quickly. It stands to reason that the more people who know of your sales will add to the crowds in your store. A few choice friends won't make a crowded store, and store news must be told to everybody in order for it to be worth while.

Good advertising paid one hundred fold forty years ago and it is paying even better these days.

CORN CUTTING IN COUNTY

STARTING EARLY THIS YEAR

Corn cutting began over Greene county this week, most of the corn being still green, with an occasional field, where the corn was planted early, beginning to ripen.

Corn will be cut in a short time

this year, in order to provide ground for seedling of wheat, at the proper time, about ten per cent of the ground of Greene county being plowed.

Many women keep about their work

when it is a great effort. They are al-

When you are in this condition give it

THE CAR MANIA.

Long ago, when I was walking, such exertion I found shocking, and the auto fans were mocking, as they gayly slithered past; so I mortgaged every chattel and my house and string of cattle, like a boob with brains a-rattle and I owned a car at last. For two months or so my flivver made my heart with rapture quiver, then I learned to sigh and shiver as I viewed my rusty wain; for my neighbors are reclining in their autos bright and shining, decked with purple velvet lining and all sorts of trimmings vain. So I borrowed pound and shilling from all people who were willing, and my uncle made a killing, lending money on my junk, and today I'm bravely steaming in an auto nobly gleaming, like the cars you see when dreaming in your little downy bunk. But I know a car that's better, and I yearn, oh, donnerwetter, for the day when I can get her, and look like an autocrat, and my soul will ache with sorrow if I cannot steal or borrow coin to get the bus tomorrow or the next day after that. And I see myself proceeding in that car, perversely speeding; and my bosom will be bleeding from a yearning high and bold for another car that's slicker, with a body made of wicker, and a patent duplex kicker, and a fan-belt edged with gold.

A LITTLE PATCH OF GIPSY FLOWERS

gorgeous or so rich in coloring?

And what a scent do these pansies have? So delicately refined, so full of modest sweetness.

I know people who make me think of these gipsy flowers. And what friends they are! Dependable, kind, gentle, beautiful in mind, unselfish, thoughtful, generous broad in sympathy and big of heart.

When I was five years old a little girl used to bring me a picking of pansies—very often. In a little envelope, among my choicest belongings, are a group of these little smilers, pressed, though as fresh in form and remembrance as when they came to me in their golds and blues and purples—long, long ago. And here is the verse that accompanied them:

"Pansies grow for thought,
Here is one for you.
Just to let you know
Your little love is true."

This would be a pretty poor world without its pansies.

Have I a favorite flower? Yes—the pansy!

MAN WHO BLEW TUT'S HORN TOO LOUDLY IS CALLED ON CARPET

New York, Sept. 2.—New York state has had a great plenty of being a happy hunting ground for fly by nightistic enterprises. They may be conducted on a small, piffling scale, in some of the minor clubs where the bill for damages is never great, but gone are the days when a fifth class push over can be ballyhooed into a match that will draw upward of 20,000 customers.

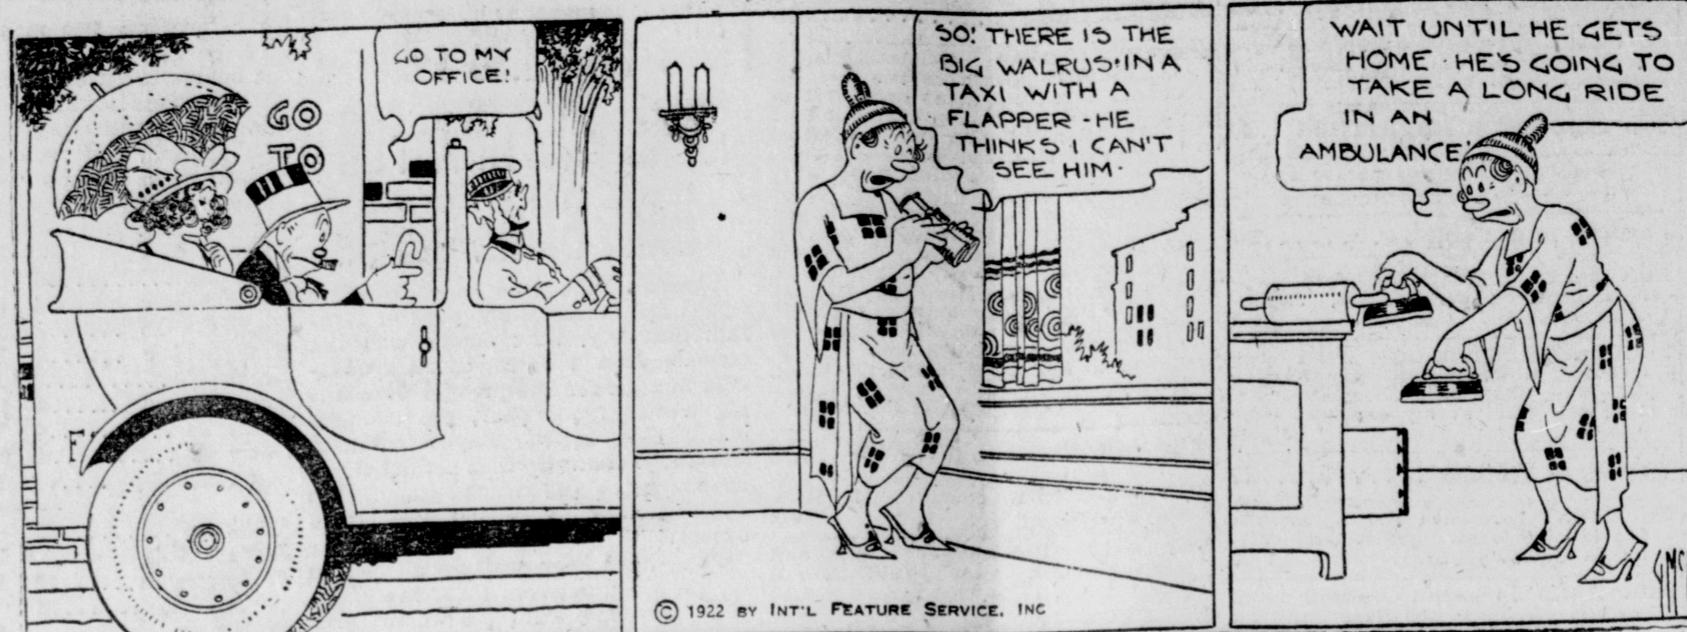

The poor, dear public was badly spoofed out of many thousands of dollars when Tut Jackson was dropped for the full count by a severe push on the chest, in the third round of his bout with Harry Wills. The weight and measurements of Jackson were juggled in order to make him appear a real man eater and reports of his fighting ability were distorted out of all reason. Jackson could not fight and would not if he could.

William Muldoon, chairman of the commission in sifting the evidence preparatory to calling Billy McCarny, the negro's manager, up on the official carpet. The facts in the case are these:

McCarney appeared on the scene about 6 weeks ago, plugging Jackson's name as he came. He got a match with Wills in two weeks and then proceeded to sit from spot to spot, dropping rather broad statements regarding the ability of the Ohio negro. These were accepted in good faith by some critics and not a little favorable publicity followed. Thus was the twenty thousand gate.

Two days before the bout, McCarny released a list of Jackson's measurements. They were grossly out of proportion to the facts. Jackson weighed 12 pounds less than the weight and two inches shorter than the height given in the specification.

Richard Purdom, 67, well known resident of Bellbrook, died at his home in that village Friday afternoon at three o'clock. Death was caused by organic heart trouble, from which he had been a sufferer for some time, being confined to his bed for the past two weeks.

Mr. Purdom was born November 3, 1856, the son of Caleb and Rachel Purdon. He is survived by his wife formerly Margaret Hower, and two daughters, Mrs. Harry Thomas, near Bellbrook, and Mrs. Elwood Rhonemus, near Bellbrook. One brother, John Purdom, of Dunkirk, Indiana, also survives, and was with Mr. Purdom at the time of his death. A grandson, Paul Thomas, also survives.

Funeral services will be held at the home in Bellbrook Monday at two o'clock and burial will be made in Woodland cemetery, this city.

TWIN COAL BILLS ARE BEFORE SENATE

Washington, Sept. 2.—The administration's twin coal bills, which will authorize a federal inquiry into the mining industry and arm the government to prevent profiteering during the winter, were before the Senate with the right of way over all other legislation.

As both measures have already passed the house, congressional leaders predicted they would be enacted into law within a week. The coal inquiry bill, sponsored by Senator Borland, Republican of Idaho, was expected to pass the senate today and anti-profiteering measure will follow it in debate.

The house bill, aimed at profiteers was reported to the senate today and sent to the interstate commerce committee, which is also considering a similar bill proposed by its chairman, Sen. Cummins, Republican of Iowa.

NEW PLANS FOR COMING SCHOOL TERM PRESENTED TO TEACHERS AT MEETING

Outlines of new plans of work which have been mapped out for the coming term, were presented to teachers of the county at meetings held Friday and Saturday in the assembly room of the court house, according to H. C. Aultman, County superintendent of schools.

Superintendent Aultman said Saturday morning that the work arranged for the year will include the introduction of a new method in teaching reading, looking toward bringing up the standard of reading in the county schools. "The standard is now below the standard in the United States, we are frank to say," said Supt. Aultman.

Other important items in the new plan of work the superintendent said are:

"Putting in an ethical program in all grades terminating in religious instruction in the high school. This program is so arranged," said Superintendent Aultman, "that it will not offend any religious denomination."

An athletic program for the entire county for the year, with the number of games not so numerous as in former years.

A schedule for high school debates and literary entertainments covering the entire county.

New superintendents who will begin their work in the county this month are: A. F. Roush, Ross county

UNDER MISS JONES' WING

Chapter 60

"Miss Jones, may I speak to you before you go to your luncheon?" Nel Doty had hesitated when she saw Nellie's youthful face, but Miss Jones' recommendation appeased her fears, and she said:

"Why not lunch together, then you will have plenty of time to tell me what you wish?"

Nellie flushed with pleasure as she accepted the invitation. After they were seated in a quiet corner of a nearby restaurant, Miss Jones said:

"What is it, Nellie?"

"You know Cora—Miss Baker's beau was killed?"

"Yes, it was very sad."

"She promised him it anything ever happened to him she would go and live with his mother—and she went yesterday. I've got to find a place to live. We've given up our iron iron, scarcely more than a cot, but the bedding immaculate. There was a small oak dresser and washstand, but the bowl and pitcher were splashed with gay flowers, and neither cracked or chipped as Nellie recalled they were at Mrs. Thompson's.

The window curtains were of cheap, coarse material but freshly laundered, and they too had a rambling design of gay flowers for a border.

"No, and it might be risky, unless you knew the girls pretty well. It is hard to find people who are congenial in close quarters and daily intimacy. What kind of a place are you thinking of?"

"I want a nice place, Miss Jones, where there are nice, refined people.

A boarding house, I think, instead of just rooming. I have looked through a lot of advertisements but I don't know much about such things, good localities, and all. Cora was always the one who decided things. But I can afford a decent place where nice people live."

"Yes—" rather absently Miss Jones mused. "Yes—" Then "How would you like to live in the house where I am? Don't get excited," as Nellie gasped happily, "I don't know that Mrs. Doty has any vacant rooms. She is a very lady like person," she smiled, "a broken down gentlewoman forced through loss of friends and money to taking 'paying guests' as she calls them. But the atmosphere of the house is good. It is clean and the food fair. I'm not going home to dinner tonight, but I'll give you a note to her, and you can see her right away if you like. It isn't often she has a vacancy. But you may be lucky

"Oh, you are so good! I've been so awfully unhappy over losing Cora. I feel as if I were beginning to live all over again. But—oh, I do hope she will have room for me."

"I hope so too, but if she hasn't don't be discouraged. I'll help you find a place."

Nellie went directly from the office to Mrs. Doty's. It was an old-fashioned brick house on one of the side streets off from Irving Place. Mrs. Doty had hesitated when she saw Nellie's youthful face, but Miss Jones' recommendation appeased her fears,

and she said:

"Fortunately for you I had a small room vacated this morning. It is on the top floor. I am sorry I haven't one lower down."

"I am used to climbing stairs" Nel Doty said happily, "I should get lazy if I didn't have to."

"Very well, I will show it to you."

The room was very tiny, just a small hall bedroom. But it was as neat as wax although the carpet was old and faded; the bed a narrow white iron iron, scarcely more than a cot, but the bedding immaculate. There was a small oak dresser and washstand, but the bowl and pitcher were splashed with gay flowers, and neither cracked or chipped as Nellie recalled they were at Mrs. Thompson's.

The window curtains were of cheap, coarse material but freshly laundered, and they too had a rambling design of gay flowers for a border.

When Nellie,—after saying she would take the room, would move in at once—asked about the price of room and board, she gasped.

"Ten dollars a week without lunch," Mrs. Doty informed her.

Could she pay it, and dress decently, and have enough for lunches, car fare, etc.? Yet how was she to learn the things she wanted to know; how become accustomed to being with refined people at table, and so on unless she did?

"I will come in a day or two," Nellie said as she paid the first week's board in advance. The understanding being that she paid from the moment she rented it, no matter how long it took her to take possession."

"I can't afford to lose a day," Mrs. Doty told her.

That night, as Nellie packed her trunk, she said aloud:

"I am beginning a new life—I wonder what it will bring me?"

BROTHER OF XENIA MAN DIES THURSDAY

John H. Mellage, 58, a brother of Joseph F. Mellage, of this city, died Thursday morning at 6:30 o'clock, at his home on Sherman avenue, Norwood, Ohio. He had been ill of heart trouble since last Easter.

Mr. Mellage was a native of Cincinnati and passed all his life there. He is survived by his widow and three daughters, Mrs. Minnie Schowfield, Mrs. Josephine Beck, Mrs. Marie Allen, of Cincinnati; a sister, Mrs. Margaret Cutzlip of Cincinnati, and his brother, Joseph Mellage of this city. Mr. Mellage went to Cincinnati to attend a funeral which was held Saturday morning at a Catholic church in Norwood.

BOY SHOT BY MAN GUARDING MELONS

Arthur Vance, 15, son of Lindsay Vance of 1077 West Second Street, is probably paying the price of other boys' appetites for lucious, juicy watermelons.

At least Arthur says that he was on the highway outside of the fence surrounding the Armmentron melon patch on the Lower Bellbrook pike, when a load of gun shot came his way about 7:30 o'clock Thursday night.

Dr. A. D. DeHaven picked seven shot from Arthur's face, scalp and shoulders, and he says that about 15 of the leaden pellets pierced the lad's anatomy. Some of the shot passed through skin and muscle and left the body.

No report of the shooting has been made to the police or sheriff.

NEW PLANS FOR COMING SCHOOL TERM PRESENTED TO TEACHERS AT MEETING

Outlines of new plans of work which have been mapped out for the coming term, were presented to teachers of the county at meetings held Friday and Saturday in the assembly room of the court house, according to H. C. Aultman, County superintendent of schools.

Superintendent Aultman said Saturday morning that the work arranged for the year will include the introduction of a new method in teaching reading, looking toward bringing up the standard of reading in the county schools. "The standard is now below the standard in the United States, we are frank to say," said Supt. Aultman.

Other important items in the new plan of work the superintendent said are:

"Putting in an ethical program in all grades terminating in religious instruction in the high school. "This program is so arranged," said Superintendent Aultman, "that it will not offend any religious denomination."

An athletic program for the entire county for the year, with the number of games not so numerous as in former years.

A schedule for high school debates and literary entertainments covering the entire county.
